The Frame Shop — Paul's trial checklist

Sep 29, 2026 · @Otis Williams

The website is ready for launch when Paul has done every item below on a private trial site, with his own accounts and real shop work, and has approved and posted one week of marketing. Tick each box as you go; write a comment on anything that doesn't work the way the shop needs.

Before Paul starts (Otis)

The trial runs on a private copy of the site with Paul's own accounts. Nothing here uses Meridian's keys.

- [ ] Trial site deployed with a permanent disk, so bookings survive a restart
- [ ] Owner password set: a real PIN for Paul and a long secret key on the server
- [ ] Paul's Anthropic account and API key added, with a monthly spending limit set in the Anthropic console
- [ ] Paul's Resend account added, sending from a domain the shop owns; replies go to theframeshop13@gmail.com
- [ ] Paul's Shopify store connected (store, admin token, payment webhook)
- [ ] Video storage connected with a new key (the old one was exposed and must be replaced)
- [ ] Gemini key for the AI diagnostic, with a budget cap
- [ ] The phone-screen post previews built, if Paul wants them for the trial

Day 1: set up the shop (Paul, about 30 minutes)

Open the website, tap Owner Login at the bottom of the page, and enter your PIN.

- [ ] My Rates: check every price, set your labor rate, shop supplies % and sales tax, then press Save rates. Works if: the "Not saved yet" warning disappears.
- [ ] Sales tax: confirm the rate and whether repair labor is taxed with your accountant before billing a real customer.
- [ ] Owner Photo Control: upload a real photo of yourself and at least one real job photo. Works if: they show on the homepage on another phone.
- [ ] Marketing → Settings: paste your Google review link; read "How you sound" and change anything that doesn't sound like you; press Save settings.
- [ ] Marketing → Settings → Send me a test now. Works if: the morning email arrives at theframeshop13@gmail.com (check spam).

Customers and jobs

Do these from your phone as if you were a customer, then check them in the Command Center.

- [ ] Book a job on the website with a real bike, answer "How did you hear about us?", and tick the offers box. Works if: you get a ticket number, and the job appears in Work Orders within a minute showing the source and "OK to send offers".
- [ ] Track it: tap Track Ticket and enter the ticket number. Works if: it shows the job and its status.
- [ ] Move it along: Confirm Lift → In Shop → Mark Completed, and add tech notes (what was wrong, what you measured, what you did). Works if: the tracker shows each new status.
- [ ] Send a message from the contact form. Works if: it appears under Customer Messages with a "new" count, and you can mark it replied.
- [ ] A customer who can't book online can still call: the phone number shows on every error message.

Getting paid

How invoicing works. Your invoices run entirely inside the website. You don't need Excel or any other program.

- Create: open a job in Work Orders and create the invoice. It starts from your prices in My Rates and works out the supplies, tax, total and balance for you.
- Save: every invoice is kept on the website with its job.

- Send: download it as a PDF, email the PDF to the customer, or email them a card pay link.
- Get paid: a card payment through the pay link marks the invoice paid by itself. Cash or check you record yourself, and the balance updates.
- Excel (optional): the Excel buttons just save a spreadsheet copy for your records or your accountant. You don't need an Excel account, and it opens in Excel, Google Sheets or Apple Numbers. If you never use it, invoicing works exactly the same.

Use your own email address as the customer for these, so every invoice comes to you. Use small amounts ($1–$5) for anything that takes a real card payment, and refund it in Shopify afterwards.

- [ ] Deposit: book a job and pay the $75 deposit online. Works if: the job shows "$75 paid in advance".
- [ ] Create the invoice on that job. Works if: it starts with the booked service at your price, and the $75 is already taken off the balance.
- [ ] Add a part and some labor, then Save Invoice. Works if: the supplies, tax, total and balance are the numbers you'd charge.
- [ ] Email PDF. Works if: the PDF arrives, looks right, shows the balance, and your private notes are not on it.
- [ ] Email Pay Link, then pay it. Works if: the job turns "Paid in full" on its own.
- [ ] Record a cash payment on another job, then remove it. Works if: the balance goes down, then back up.
- [ ] Download PDF, System Print, and Bluetooth Print (if you have the receipt printer). Works if: each shows the shop's real address and phone.
- [ ] Invoices Excel. Works if: the spreadsheet opens and shows what's been paid and what's still owed.

Marketing

Everything the assistants write waits in Marketing → To approve. Nothing is posted or sent until you approve it. Read every draft as if a customer will: if anything is untrue, it fails.

- [ ] Content planner: finish 2–3 real jobs with good tech notes first, then run it. Works if: the posts describe those real jobs, every [ask Paul] gap is something only you know, and nothing is made up (no fake reviews, numbers, years or guarantees).

- [ ] Film one TikTok from a draft's "Video to film" plan, and post it with the caption. Works if: the plan was something you could film in the shop in under 15 minutes.
- [ ] Post one Instagram or Facebook draft: Approve → Copy → paste into the app → Mark posted. Works if: it appears under "Sent & posted".
- [ ] Inbox replies: send yourself a question through the contact form, run it, edit and send. Works if: the reply answers the question in your voice and arrives in your inbox.
- [ ] Review replies: paste one of your real Google reviews. Works if: you'd post the reply as written, or with small edits.
- [ ] Review requests: finish a job booked under your own email, run it, approve and send. Works if: the email has your Google review link and offers nothing in return.
- [ ] Email campaign: with only your own booking ticked for offers, run it with a real goal and send. Works if: only you receive it, and the unsubscribe link at the bottom takes you off the list.
- [ ] Market radar: run it. Works if: the brief is about real local shops and events, and each source link opens.
- [ ] Morning email: leave a draft unapproved overnight. Works if: an email arrives after 7am saying what's waiting.
- [ ] Results: Works if: your test bookings show under the right "heard about us" answer, and the money figures match your invoices.
- [ ] One real week: approve and post a full week of drafts. Works if: it took you under an hour, and you'd do it again next week.

Photos and videos

- [ ] Upload a video filmed upright on your phone in Owner Photo Control. Works if: it plays by itself on the homepage, fills the phone screen, and plays on both an iPhone and an Android phone.
- [ ] Add a YouTube video by link. Works if: it plays on the homepage.
- [ ] Change a case-study photo, then reset it. Works if: both changes show on another phone after a refresh.

Sign-off

If something doesn't work: write down what you tapped just before, take a screenshot, and leave a comment on that line of this checklist (or text Otis). Nothing you do on the trial site can harm the live website.

The site goes live when all of these are true:

- [ ] Every box above is ticked, or has a comment Otis has fixed and Paul has re-checked
- [ ] Paul has read the draft Privacy, Terms, Refunds and Cookies pages and filled in the highlighted gaps, and a lawyer has reviewed them
- [ ] Paul has answered the open questions: years in business, "1,200+ frames", whether the case studies are real jobs, and what the guarantees cover
- [ ] Paul has approved and posted one real week of marketing
